

I Can't Wait to Greet You! from Hazzan Stein

Back in November, I spent a week in Los Angeles at the annual convention for the Cantors Assembly, the professional organization for cantors of the Conservative Movement. I say “annual” because it’s usually an annual affair. But, like many formerly regular gatherings, it was the first in-person gathering in a few years, due to a thing called COVID-19.

We did, however, have a virtual convention last year that went surprisingly well. After a year and a half of navigating the virtual world, it was pretty natural interacting with one another on screen. And we made the most of it. But it wasn’t the same.

Morning minyan was OK, but there’s nothing like davening with scores of cantors filling the room with sound, song, and harmonies. Virtual concerts were nice – including one that my friend and I produced featuring cantors singing Jewish music from around the world – but nothing compares with experiencing a live concert.

And they even organized a virtual informal hangout space for colleagues to chat and catch up in different virtual rooms. (Imagine an early computer video game where your photo serves as your player as you roam the screen, visiting different rooms in search of photos of other people to chat with.) It was a little weird. But on the plus side, the virtual forum allowed us to stay in touch with one another in a way that would have been impossible not too long ago.

‘Every additional person who shows up makes a significant positive difference.’

I give everyone – all the organizers and all the participants – credit for giving it a shot. But, ultimately, nothing, no matter how well conceived and executed, can match face to face communication and being physically present with another person, especially one with whom you would like to connect and reconnect more deeply. Which made this year’s return to an in-person setting all the more rewarding. In-person minyan. In-person learning. In-person concerts. In-person socializing. Nothing beats it.

Which brings us back here to Milwaukee. Over the past year plus, we’ve experienced a return to in-person services, programming, and events. It’s been a challenging transition as we navigate a world where COVID is still a reality. And, possibly more significantly, Zoom offers us a convenient way to tune in to synagogue happenings from home or wherever we may be, and however formally (or informally) we may be dressed.

For the time being, we are sticking with Zoom as an option. It has been very valuable for some, especially those who are not physically able to attend in person. But for those who are able, I strongly encourage you to join us in person, whether for services, classes, concerts, dinners, or any other opportunity to come together to build and experience community.

The in-person Cantors Assembly convention was, as they say in Yiddish, a mechaya. Translated as a joy or a pleasure, it comes from the Hebrew mechayei – revitalize or, more literally, bring back to life. In this sense, it really did feel like a mechaya; seeing friends and colleagues face to face for the first time in over three years was truly

Help a Jewish Angel Get its Wings from Beata Abraham

While there are many things in life that are out of your hands, making a challah is not one of them.

In fact, I am convinced that in the right hands, a freshly baked challah has the power to bring about world peace. And while we patiently wait for it to reach the exact right hands, if it hasn't already, the process of baking a luscious, braided loaf can, and should, find its way into your kitchen. If you're a newbie, baking challah from scratch can be a bit intimidating due to the vast number of ways that you can mess it up. But rest assured that with moderate prep, some rolled up sleeves and a modicum of patience, you too can rebrand yourself as a master challah baker.

Of course, there is a lot more to be gained from making your own challah than the delicious result and the aroma that will linger in your home for hours, enhancing the Shabbat spirit. But even more importantly, If you pay close attention throughout the process, you will absorb some of the many life lessons that your warm, crusty sage, the challah, has to teach you.

In the book The Rising Life, author Rochie Pinson shares some of the life lessons she has gleaned while baking challah as a Jewish woman, wife, mother, and individual. She writes, "I began to feel the challah dough echoing the sounds (and, at times, cacophony) of my life. The act of making the challah ... became meditative, meaningful, therapeutic, and soul-refreshing."

Life lesson #1: Gametime Decisions Matter

Choosing the perfect challah recipe from among the over 758,000 that come up in a Google search can be overwhelming. Pick the wrong one and your divine dough may be doomed.

Fortunately, in both life and challah baking, breaking down your decision-making process into a few simple steps can help.

1. Identify your goal: Do you want your challah to be sweet or savory? Light or dense?
2. Do your research: Watch a YouTube video on challah baking, read a ton of recipe reviews, ask pros for their tips.
3. Trust yourself: Listen to your inner voice; it probably has your best interest in mind. Pick the most appealing recipe, roll up your sleeves, and boldly plunge elbows deep into the flour.

Life Lesson# 2: Easier Is Not Always Better

As with most things in life, you get out what you have put in.

Of course, there are plenty of perfectly braided and baked loaves of challah on the supermarket shelves, but buying one will mean that you miss out on being transported by the aroma filling your kitchen. Baking challah is messy and time consuming, but don't try to MacGyver it. Your success depends on following a series of intricate steps correctly and in order. The result will inspire your taste buds to join hands in a dance of joy.

Life Lesson #3: Question the Status Quo

Questioning the norm can lead you to your passion.

Do rainbow sprinkles on your challah make your heart sing louder than sesame seeds? Does a schmear of Nutella on a rainbow-colored loaf tempt your taste buds more than a plain loaf with a pat of butter? Whether it is a honey-cinnamon glaze, or a sprinkle of chives baked into the shiny surface, experiment with versions that speak to your soul.

"The first of your dough, challah, you shall offer as a gift..." Numbers 15:20.

According to Pinson, "When we give of ourselves in a way that is true to who we are, we receive much more than we give.... Just like flames, we give light to others and become brighter in the process. This is challah."

CBINT SHABBATON:

Our Congregational Shabbat Retreat

Dear CBINT Community,

In this winter's deep freeze, CBINT will have its warmest weekend of the year!

Please join your CBINT family for a joyful retreat from February 10-February 12, 2023. The CBINT Shabbaton will take place at the Wisconsin Dells' beautiful Perlstein Retreat Center. There we'll experience Shabbat with delicious kosher food, inspired teaching, winter fun, and uplifting prayer, while celebrating new and renewed friendships across our generations.

On Friday afternoon we will settle into our rooms in the Lodge. The program proper will begin with a community activity at 4:30, followed by candle lighting at 5:04. Kabbalat Shabbat begins at 5:00 with a delicious dinner to follow. A Shabbaton means sweet time together from start to finish:

- Shabbat services with new participants and new expression
- Beautiful surroundings for walks and play; comfortable beds for welcome rest
- Teachings from Rabbi Alter
- Tables laden with good food
- Both Rabbi Alter and Hazzan Stein (and their families) will be there
- Saturday evening's program will be the talk of Milwaukee for a generation!
- We will publish a detailed schedule in the coming weeks.

$120/adult $90/child $360/household
(Under 1 year, no charge)

We want as many congregants as possible to participate, so if you have concerns about the cost, please reach out to Rabbi Alter. We will also give attention to facilitating rides, especially for elders in order for this wonderful weekend to be as accessible as possible.

The program will end after lunch on Sunday, early enough to enjoy some Wisconsin Dells fun before heading home.

Please make room in your calendar to be a part of CBINT's first Shabbaton in a long while. To register, go to www.cbintmilwaukee.org and be in touch with us or Rabbi Alter if you have questions or concerns.

In enthusiastic anticipation of a wonderful Shabbat together,

Laurie Biskowitz and Moria Lehman, Shabbaton Committee Co-Chairs

revitalizing. And it's the same at CBINT. After a few years of barely seeing certain people, and very rarely experiencing synagogue life in large numbers, it's a mechaya to experience a return to in-person gatherings. Every additional person who shows up makes a significant positive difference.

I encourage everyone who is able to rejoin us in person as often as possible and help experience the mechaya of building and rebuilding our community. I can't wait to see you, greet you, and reconnect with you.

Does a Jewish angel get its wings every time a challah is baked? We may never know for certain (though it is likely...), but there are still plenty of good reasons to attempt the mystical alchemy invoked when baking one from scratch. The result will be supremely delicious and a great way to usher in Shabbat. And let's not overlook the fact challah is not too shabby at reminding us of some much-needed life lessons that can change the world, by changing you. If wings happen too, well, that's a bonus.

Take a Look in Our Shul School!

We have reached a new milestone this year at 50 students enrolled!! We are thrilled at the growth of our school, and it wouldn't be possible without our incredible families and our teachers. Take a look at what we've been up to:

Kehilla Explorers – Taught by Aviva Arieti

Our youngest class explored the meaning of their class name, Kehilla, which means community. Aviva then led them in some fall discovery, learning about the colors of the leaves in Hebrew. She connected that lesson to the "Tree of Life," and how it represents personal wisdom and growth. For Hanukkah, our Explorers teamed up with the K-1st grade class to put on a Hanukkah play.

K-1st – Taught by Tarin Gordon

After the break from the holidays, our K-1st graders explored the Creation story. This lesson was an immersive exploration of the seven days of Creation, culminating in a cozy fort to signify the seventh day, Shabbat, the day of rest.

2-4 – Taught by Lindsay Propper

The first day back from the High Holiday break was jam packed with learning and connection. Lindsay led her class in discussion about the concept of B'tzelem Elohim – being made in the image of G-d. They explored questions like what does it mean to be made in G-d's image if we can't see G-d, and how to act like G-d (embodying traits such as empathy, lovingkindness, caring).

5-7 – Taught by Jake Rosenberg

The first Sunday post-High Holiday break, our 5-7th graders engaged in a discussion about antisemitism in the modern world in order to address recent instances of it within the music industry. They also talked about the ethics of separating the artist from the art, and how to address antisemitism with non-Jewish people within our own daily lives.

The following week, Jake led them in a game where the students came up with an apology in a mad libs style, analyzing the lengths we must go to make things right with those we've wronged even after Yom Kippur.

Madrichim – Led by Kate Schlotman

Our incredible group of Madrichim spend the beginning portion of Sunday school gaining invaluable leadership skills in the classrooms as they assist our teachers with their lessons. After the High Holiday break, Kate implemented a rotation of who gets to lead art class, which gives our teens more exposure to a variety of age groups and leadership skills. The second portion of the morning our teens gather in their classroom to be led by Kate in learning about Jewish culture, traditions, exploring text-based learning, as well as how to implement their leadership skills for different age groups while they are in the classrooms.

Shul School Specials

Part of what makes the Shul School experience interesting and fun are the specials we have every month.

If you haven't had a chance to visit our children's library, be sure to check it out! Our students love having library time with Terri Gingold every month. Terri has spent many hours making the library a space where kids can come and nurture their love of books along with their connection to Jewish holidays, culture, and tradition.

Every week, our Kehilla Explorers and K-1st grade classes combine to have Shira, led by Hazzan Stein. This time is filled with music and dancing, and is a space where the two classes can spend time together to deepen the feeling of community in our school.

ShinShinim, Maya and Orri. They bring stories and activities to share with each class so they can learn more about Israel.

Our Shul School Kehilla

While each group is forging deep connections with each other, we wanted to make sure the whole school feels a sense of Kehilla with each other. And so, on our first day back from the High Holiday break, our entire school created a Hamsa wall. In art class, our Madrichim led the classes in creating a Hamsa out of their own handprints, which were decorated and then put on our entry wall to display to the whole community. Come check it out, and see what our beautiful Shul School Kehilla is getting into next :)

Hello, from Allie Barry!

This year has been a whirlwind of incredible experiences, especially as I am stepping into my role as Assistant Director of Congregational Learning.

Some people have asked what exactly I do, so I thought it would be a good idea to tell you! I assist Beata (our Executive Director and Director of Congregational Learning) in the running of our beloved Shul School, as well as any other programming and events we put on.

Some exciting things from last month: I wanted to make sure this Hanukkah was eventful for CBINT, so we put together events so there was something for everyone!

We had our Tzofim Hanukkah Pajama Party, Young Adult Movie Night (21-29), Medium Adult Game Night (30's & 40's), our Adult Game Night (50+), and of course our monthly Senior Lunch and Learn :)

Exciting upcoming events: Family snow tubing day at Sunburst, T.G.I.S. (Thank God It's Shabbat), and a CBINT community program from HERC on Antisemitism from the Holocaust – Today. Keep an eye on our weekly e-blast with more information on our upcoming events and programs!

I am honored and excited to be a part of this vibrant community, and I am looking forward to meeting and getting to know more of you, and seeing your beautiful faces at our programs!

Social Action Committee Updates & News

Welcome to the year 2023 – in the year 5783! The Social Action Committee (SAC) is organizing our Mishloach Manot fundraising initiative. We have several interested teammates working to make this a different and interesting celebration! Do watch your mail and e-blasts for new information as we inch closer to March 6 and 7 to celebrate Purim! Positive changes are underway to improve our celebration of this wonderful holiday as a Congregation!

Marge's Mitzvah Knitters and the Green Team members are working together on an initiative to collect and recycle unused yarn for the group's knitting projects this year. A special bin for yarn is located in the office lobby.

Team member numbers for the SAC are growing, and it is wonderful to interact with so many members. In February we will begin introducing and sharing them.

In the meantime, stay tuned and THANK YOU for your continued support of our activities and doings!

Barbara Simon and Beth Peterman

Donations Sought for the Social Action Committee "Yarn Barn"

Social Action Committee is seeking your generous donations of unused yarn skeins! Your donated yarn will be used by CBINT's Marge's Mitzvah Knitters to create their amazing warm-weather accessories to be distributed to deserving organizations in the Milwaukee area. Last month, the knitters donated nearly 100 scarves, hats, mittens, and blankets to worthy recipients. Look for the Yarn Barn donation bin at the CBINT office. Thank you in advance for your donations!
